Good business statement.

1. Business Description

The business is a newsagent shop that sells newspapers and magazines and provides a subscription and home delivery service to customers.It aims to provide convenient, reliable, and timely access to daily publications without requiring customers to visit the shop. Customers either visit the shop daily to buy newspapers or contact the shop to request delivery services or start a subscription. The business offers different subscription types, including daily, weekly, and monthly plans, supported by staff responsible for customer service and preparing orders for delivery. Some customers rely on regular subscriptions, while others make occasional requests.
The business serves both individual customers, such as households, and business customers like offices, cafes, and hotels. The main purpose of the business is to ensure that customers receive their newspapers on time every day while maintaining accurate records of subscriptions, payments, and deliveries.

Reasonable, missing specific details, delivers everywhere? which hours? how i cancel should i be in place or over the phone.

2. Business Services

The business sells newspapers and magazines directly in the shop, offering 30 different types of publications. It also provides a subscription service where customers request newspapers and choose delivery frequency such as daily, weekly, or monthly. The business sources newspapers from both local and international suppliers and also imports printing ink and related materials from outside the country to support its operations. The business delivers newspapers early in the morning based on fixed routes. Customers pay either in cash or in advance for subscriptions. If a subscription is canceled within 24 hours, the customer is eligible for a refund; otherwise, cancellations are accepted without a refund. The shop also handles customer requests such as changing address, pausing delivery, or canceling subscriptions, and manages complaints such as missing or incorrect deliveries.

600 subscribers daily and then you say 120 customers daily? where the rest you get them from?

3. Business Capacity

The business serves 800 active customers, including 600 daily subscribers. It delivers approximately 3,000 newspapers per day and handles 120 customer requests daily. Deliveries are completed within a 3-hour period each morning using 8 delivery workers and 4 vehicles. The business offers exactly 30 types of publications and employs 13 workers. It expects to grow to 1,500 customers.The business currently operates within a limited local delivery area but aims to expand its coverage to a wider region as the number of customers increases.

missing specific details, morning till what hour?, 13 workers with delivery? local how? city? village? where are the monthly numbers?

4. Business Processes

Poor, lack of specific details everywhere, who does each specific action you mentioned? how it's EXACTLY done?

Selling Process:

1. Customers visit the shop.
2. Customers select newspapers or magazines.
3. Staff calculate the total price.
4. Customers complete the payment.
5. Customers receive their purchased items.

Subscription Process:

1. Customers request a subscription in-store.
2. Customers provide personal and delivery details.
3. Customers choose the subscription type (daily, weekly, or monthly).
4. Payment is completed in advance.
5. The subscription is recorded and the customer is added to the delivery list.

Delivery Process:

1. Workers prepare and organize newspapers in the early morning.
2. Delivery lists are assigned to delivery workers.
3. Newspapers are distributed according to planned delivery routes.
4. Deliveries are completed within the scheduled time period.

lack of exact times, be specific

Customer Requests Process:

1. Customers submit requests such as changing address, pausing, or canceling subscriptions.
2. Staff review and verify the request.
3. Subscription details are updated accordingly.
4. Changes are applied to future deliveries.

how?

Complaints Process:

1. Customers report issues such as missed or incorrect deliveries.
2. Staff investigate the complaint.
3. The issue is resolved through redelivery or correction.
4. The complaint is recorded for reference.

do customers come to the shop and report or through the phone? do they fill a form or by word of mouth?

Revenue Process:

1. Revenue is generated from newspaper sales and subscriptions.
2. Payments are collected from customers.
3. Transactions are recorded and maintained.
4. Financial records are updated and maintained.

very poor and vague, no details about the subscriptions and what are they, how do they record the transactions or maintain it? how do they update?

5. Employees and Roles

Good section, add some specific details.

The business employs 13 workers: one store manager, two customer service employees, two sales employees, and eight delivery workers.The store manager is responsible for overseeing daily operations, organizing staff tasks, monitoring performance, and ensuring that all processes run efficiently.Customer service employees handle customer inquiries, manage subscriptions, update customer details, and resolve complaints or delivery issues.Sales employees assist customers in selecting newspapers and magazines, process in-store purchases, and handle payment transactions.Delivery workers are responsible for preparing, organizing, and delivering newspapers and magazines to customers' addresses according to planned routes and schedules. Each role supports daily operations, ensuring smooth management of customers, sales, order preparation, and timely delivery of newspapers.

6. Users / Stakeholders:

- Individual customers (households)
- Business customers (offices, cafes, hotels)
- Store manager
- Employees (sales, customer service, delivery workers)
- Suppliers (newspaper providers)

7. Business Challenges

The business faces challenges due to manual processes, including errors in customer records, difficulty tracking subscriptions, delivery mistakes, and time-consuming handling of customer requests. As the number of customers increases, managing payments and records becomes more difficult.

You have to tell what are the errors and mistakes? and how customers handled that makes the process time-consuming.
